DON'T BE FOOLED BY BOGUS PHONE CALLS, STATE COURT ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICE WARNS; SCAMMERS POSE AS COURT OFFICIALS, SEEK INFORMATION

LANSING, MI, August 24, 2005 – It may sound legitimate: a phone call from a court official about jury service, threatening legal action and asking for Social Security numbers, credit card numbers, or other confidential information.

But it's only a scam that could lead to identity theft and fraud, warns the State Court Administrative Office (SCAO), the administrative agency of the Michigan Supreme Court.

Typically, the caller claims to be a court official and states that the targeted person has failed to report for jury service. The caller then threatens the target with prosecution unless he or she provides a Social Security number, financial information, or other confidential data.

"Be aware: the only way Michigan state courts contact prospective jurors is by mail; prospective jurors can call courts, but courts don't initiate those calls," said State Court Administrator Carl L. Gromek. "And courts never call prospective jurors to get their financial information."

While very few Michigan residents have reported receiving such calls, the scams are still a concern, Gromek said, noting that similar calls have been reported in other states.

"Courts take it seriously any time people falsely represent that they are court officials, which is a crime by itself," he said. "Our hope is that we will not see this problem in Michigan, but the public should still be on guard."

To avoid becoming the victim of a telephone scam, remember the following:

- Courts do not contact citizens by phone regarding jury duty. Be suspicious if a person calls claiming to be a court official or staff person.
- Be skeptical if you are told, "In order to avoid prosecution for missing jury duty, you must provide your social security number now so we can verify your information."
- Be suspicious if the person pressures you for immediate action or refuses to send written information for you to review.
- Never give out your bank, credit card, or social security information over the phone to someone who calls you.
- If you are uncomfortable, hang up, even if the caller threatens prosecution.
- Report suspicious calls to local police.
